Toronto-based In-Sync expands Publicis Healthcare Communication Groupe's (PHCG) customer insight capabilities

Paris, April 6, 2010 — Publicis Groupe announced today that it has acquired Toronto-based In-Sync, a recognized thought leader in the customer insight space. In-Sync will become part of Publicis Healthcare Communications Group (PHCG). In-Sync with 75 employees, is a market research consultancy offering a fully integrated suite of innovative, quantitative and qualitative branded products to top biopharma companies worldwide. The acquisition of In-Sync will strengthen PHCG's edge by providing clients greater customer insight in the healthcare space.

In-Sync will maintain its current location and name and will continue to be led by founding partner and President Janet Winkler. The agency will report to Sam Welch, COO of PHCG North America.

Winkler formed In-Sync in 1989, later focusing on the health and wellness space, which is the core focus of its business today. The agency brings together the disciplines of market research, brand strategy, and management consulting with the social studies of human groups and individuals, utilizing its proprietary 360° Insight Engine™. Their impressive and growing client list includes many of the top pharma companies.

Nick Colucci, President and CEO of PHCG, said: "Our healthcare network is strong and growing in part by finding value-creating acquisitions such as In-Sync, which bring tremendous strategy and innovative solutions to our biopharma clients and their brands." Colucci continued, "The In-Sync team is already an impressive and highly sought after company, but we believe they will grow exponentially once they become part of our global network."

Winkler said, "Joining PHCG enables us to extend our global presence and expand client value through the Group's full scope of talent, resources and service." She continued, "We look forward to delivering continued outstanding work to our current clients. We are also excited by the opportunity to more seamlessly integrate customer insight and branding with the ultimate goal of helping our clients better deliver against the needs of their customers."

Welch said, "For clients looking to establish new brands or accelerate the growth of an existing one, In-Sync not only is a tremendous asset in itself, but also builds on the incredible foundation existing in our current strategic agencies. The company has amassed an intimate knowledge of healthcare professional and payer needs and motivations across a range of specialties. The company also has gained insights into the needs—emotional and rational—of patients, caregivers, and key opinion leaders. Significantly, the In-Sync orientation considers a human-first perspective, regardless of customer target. In-Sync has fine-tuned a number of sector-specific capabilities including:

- Clinical Endpoint Optimization: Determines the most meaningful and differentiating endpoints for clinical trial development, which can be used to optimize the construction of clinical trials and, ultimately, the market potential of the molecule.
- Condition Architecture: Provides a blueprint of current and emerging needs for a therapeutic area including: defining undermet and unmet needs, treatment strategies and options, identifying stakeholders and how they interconnect, and pinpointing emotional and rational drivers of treatment choice.
- Day in the Life: Reveals the motivational opportunities that can fuel brand growth by uncovering the targets' (Patient, Physician or Payer) rational and emotional rules of engagement in a therapeutic area.
- Emotional Journey: Deconstructs the patient or physician illness journey, pinpointing the Moments of Meaning that, when leveraged, can strengthen the Brand/target relationship.
- Segmentation for Growth: Identifies brand growth opportunities by segmenting the market, patient and/or physician by going beyond attitude and behavior alone and factoring in motivations and language to enable activation within the marketing and sales teams.
